MEDIA INFORMATION

Welcome to the final season of Bullets basketball at the USAir Arena...our 35th year as a member of the NBA. The USAir Arena is located in Landover, MD, approximately 30 minutes from Washington National Airport, 40 minutes from Baltimore-Washington Int'l Airport, and about an hour from Dulles Int'l Airport. The arena can be accessed by exits 15A and 17A off of the Capital Beltway. In an effort to continue to provide a professional working environment, please adhere to the following guidelines for the season:

CREDENTIALS: Single game and season credentials should be requested by calling the Bullets Communications office at (301) 773-2255. Single game credentials should be requested at least 24 hours in advance. Press and photo credentials are issued to accredited media members and will admit the bearer to the press room, locker rooms and press row. Credentials may be picked up at the press gate, located between the Stars & Stripes and the Capitol entrances. Credentials must be visibly worn at all times.

PRESS ROOM: The press room will be open 1 $^{1}/_{2}$ hours prior to game time, during the game and following the game. We must limit press room usage to members of the media only. The professional intent of the press room is to provide a meeting and working place for writers, reporters, broadcasters and game personnel. Any abuse of the press room and/or press privileges will cause forfeiture of your press pass. The working area of the press room is equipped with a fax machine, telephones, statistics, post-game quotes and other NBA scores.

LOCKER ROOM: In accordance with NBA policy, both the Bullets and the visiting locker rooms will be open to members of the media up to 45 minutes before game time and 10 minutes after the end of the game. No autographs allowed during media access periods.

PHOTOGRAPHERS: Limited space is available at each end of the court for both television and still photographers holding proper credentials. Photographers must stay in the designated areas and are asked to be considerate of spectators seated directly behind them.

MEALS: A pre-game meal will be served in the press room prior to each game. In addition, beverages and snacks will be available at halftime and post-game.

GAME NOTES AND STATISTICS: Pre-game press notes, media guides and line-up sheets will be available in the press room prior to each game. Game statistics will be distributed to the working media during the game and will be available in the press room.

FOR MEDIA INFORMATION AND SERVICES, please contact Matt Williams, Maureen Lewis or Doug Hicks in the Bullets Communications Department at (301) 773-2255. The USAir Arena Press Room number is (301) 350-3400, ext. 1750. The Press Table number is (301) 350-3400, ext. 1771.

In Memory

The Washington Bullets suffered a big loss over the summer with the passing of Assistant Coach Derek Smith. Smith, 34, died after collapsing on a cruise ship on August 9, 1996.

Derek spent two seasons as assistant coach with the Bullets after being hired on July 5, 1994. The University of Louisville product joined Lynam on the Bullets bench after playing two seasons for him with the Clippers and Sixers.

Smith's NBA playing career began in 1982 with the Golden State Warriors. His basketball career was a series of setbacks, almost always playing injured. He had four knee operations in five years. Smith was released 27 games into his rookie season, but his work ethic drove him to succeed with the Los Angeles Clippers where he posted his best numbers.

The 6-foot-6 guard averaged 22.1 ppg, shooting 53.7 percent, and 5.3 rpg for the Clippers during the 1984-85 season, but fell to injury just nine games into the following year. The injuries forced him to retire after playing nine seasons and only 408 games in the NBA.

Collegiately, Smith won an NCAA championship at Louisville in 1980. Two years later, Smith led the Cardinals back to the NCAA Final Four during his senior year, and concluded his career as the school's second all-time leading scorer behind Darrell Griffith.

Derek Smith, a native of Hogansville, Ga., is survived by his wife Monica, and his two children, Sydney and Nolan.

Many will remember Derek as a fierce competitor on the court and a compassionate giver off of it.

"Derek was driven to succeed and he understood that it just doesn't happen. You have to work to make it happen," said Head Coach Jim Lynam. "I lost a friend as close as any on this planet."

"Usually when you go to funerals, people say a lot of great things about people who weren't really great people," said Charles Barkley, Smith's teammate with the Philadelphia 76ers in the late 80's. "But any time somebody says something about Derek Smith, you know he was a great person and the world is not as good as it was a week ago."

"Derek was a great guy to have on the team," said Chris Ford, Milwaukee Bucks Head Coach. "He talked a lot and made things fun. He worked hard and did everything we asked of him."

"Derek came from a modest background and was a self-made success story," Louisville coach Denny Crum said. "He succeeded at everthing he tried. Earning his degree, becoming a great player in college and as a professional, and most recently as a coach."

An educational trust fund has been established by Abe and Irene Pollin and the Bullets to assist the Smith family in the financial arrangements for the college and graduate education of his children, Sydney and Nolan.
"Education and family were extremely important to Derek," said Abe Pollin. "We felt that this would be a way to honor Derek's commitment by providing Sydney and Nolan with their college and graduate education."

LOOKING BACK

Professional basketball in Washington was born at a time when patriotism was at a high and the word 'bullets' sparked very different emotions. In 1963, the Chicago Zephyrs moved to Baltimore and became the Bullets, named in honor of a team that played during the 1940s and called themselves the Bullets after the city's wartime ammunition factory.

Times have changed. America is now moving to end violence and bring peace to its neighborhoods. Focusing ahead, Bullets Chairman Abe Pollin has planned his next move in accordance with this national concern. The team will leave not only USAir Arena but also its name behind, entering the state-of-the-art MCI Center as the Washington Wizards in the fall of 1997.

After 24 years as the home of the Bullets, USAir Arena carries quite a legacy. Originally called the Capital Centre, the arena was the top facility of its time, boasting the country's first luxury skyboxes and the now-popular four-sided suspended screen. The arena also housed Washington's first NBA World Championship team, the 1977-78 Bullets.

Over the years, USAir Arena hosted many other grand events, including NBA and NHL All-Star Games, a variety of college basketball tournaments, the Moscow Circus, Disney on Ice, the World Professional Figure Skating Championship, the 1993 Presidential Inaugural Gala, and countless concerts featuring the most talented performers in the world.

As the Bullets prepare for their 33rd and final season in Landover, MD, take time and soak up the history. Things will be different next season with a new arena and new look. But the spirit of the Bullets will remain and continue on, looking to bring a bit of history into its new home.

WHILE FORGING AHEAD

On October 15, 1995, groundbreaking began on the newest state-of-the-art athletic and entertainment facility. In the fall of 1997, the world's most advanced sports and entertainment complex will open at 7th and F Streets in Washington D.C. The MCI Center will hold a capacity crowd of 20,600 with 110 private suites and 3,000 club seats. The new home of the Washington Wizards will be lush with amenities and services, making seats to MCI Center events the hottest ticket in the nation's capital.

The outside of the arena reflects the historical character of Washington. The sidewalks closest to nearby Chinatown will be covered with a curved, dragon-style canopy that blends in with the look of the rest of the neighborhood. Above the entrance near Chinatown, MCI Center will appear in Chinese characters. The building's facade will reflect the same white limestone color of many of the federal museums and other buildings in historic Washington.

Inside, the center will feature underground parking and a mall to remain open even when no event is scheduled in the arena. In all, there will be 50,000 square feet of retail shops, as well as a sports and entertainment museum.

Roughly 60 percent of the 20,600 seats at the MCI Center will be located in the lower concourse, which puts the fans closer to the court, rink, or stage than those at USAir Arena. The seats will be wider and more plush and will be turned to face the action on the floor with no obstruction from supports holding up the roof. The club seats will be equipped with TV monitors that allows fans to call up instant replay or participate in surveys, as well as the ability to ask on-line questions.

At the groundbreaking ceremony last October, D.C. Mayor Marion Berry summed up the city's excitement over the new MCI Center:

"This is a great day for the city of Washington and for the sports fans of this area...But we're not just building an arena. We're building lasting ties between the city and our good corporate neighbors. This is the beginning of a new wave of downtown job development."

Abe Pollin has a lot to be proud of these days. This fall, 55 college students will begin the second year of their college education thanks to the encouragement and assistance from Pollin. In 1988, he spoke to the fifth grade students at Seat Pleasant Elementary School in Seat Pleasant, Md.

"When you are ready to go to college, there will be funds to pay your tuition," he told the students. "The only condition is that you graduate from high school and are accepted by a college."

This is just one example of what separates Pollin from most wealthy businessmen. He possesses a passionate need to give back to the community.

"We're put on the earth to do more than just take care of ourselves," says Pollin, "And those who find themselves in a position to give rather than receive are rather lucky. Particularly those of us in sports who have a special responsibility because we are able to provide things that people like, such as teams, players and tickets. It's critical that we make use of those assets to give back to the community more than we take out."

As chairman of all USAir Arena based operations, Pollin oversees the corporate umbrella of Centre Group. In addition to its two best known entities — the Bullets and the NHL's Capitals — the burgeoning operation also handles arena sponsorships, advertising and computer ticketing services, as well as the design and management of other arenas.

As the longest tenured owner in the National Basketball Association, Pollin has been at the center of every major issue, including the salary cap, expansion and the reform of the league's marketing efforts. In the process, he has become one of the most experienced and respected individuals in the world of professional sports.

"Abe has been a wise and experienced counselor," explains NBA Commissioner David Stern. "He has extraordinary respect from the other owners because of his success, experience and his personality."

Born and raised in Philadelphia, Pollin worked for his father's plumbing/contracting business for many years. After graduating from George Washington University in 1945, Pollin continued working for the family business until 1957, when he formed his own contracting firm. Pollin rapidly established his name amongst the elite builders in the Washington D.C. area. In fact, he was the first Washington contractor to build an apartment house with a roof-top swimming pool.

Pollin's career took a turn in 1964 as he and two Pollin's career took a turn in 1964 as he and two partners purchased the NBA's Baltimore Bullets for a then-record $1.1 million. His days as a contractor were not to end, but Pollin's new priority became the franchise.

"I've been a sports nut all my life," says Pollin, "And I always dreamt of owning a professional franchise." When the ownership opportunity came up, "I grabbed it," he said.

After becoming sole owner of the Bullets in July of 1968, Pollin began searching to expand his empire. In 1972, the NHL was to begin expansion and Pollin secured a franchise, later to be named the Capitals.

To accommodate the Capitals and to give the Bullets a state-of-the-art facility, Pollin decided to travel south down Interstate 95, and move his teams to the Washington D.C. area. Pollin originally envisioned being a tenant in somebody else's arena, but changed his mind, and decided to build his own. Pollin's many years of experience as a contractor gave him a good idea of just what he wanted his new arena to be.

"It couldn't just be any arena," Pollin sternly said. "As long as we were building a building in the nation's capital, it had to be one of the best in the world."

The USAir Arena (originally called Capital Centre), was strategically designed so that every seat in the house would have a perfect view. Pollin also provided several "Sky Suites," the first luxury skyboxes to be introduced in an America sporting facility. The arena also sported the country's first giant four-sided screen, suspended from the arena's ceiling, that could show fans instant replays and other highlights.

Since the arena opened, more than 45 million people of all ages have watched not only basketball and hockey, but soccer, family shows, concerts, and countless other extravagant events.

These days, Pollin is deeply involved in another new challenge, continuing the construction of another state-of-the-art arena in downtown Washington D.C. to be known as MCI Center. Ready for play during the 1997-98 season, the MCI Center is expected to be the most technology-advanced sports and entertainment facility in the world.

Pollin currently resides in Bethesda, Md., with his wife Irene. Their older son, Robert, and his wife, Sigrid, live in Riverside, Calif., with their two daughters. Robert Pollin is an economics professor at the University of Southern California. Abe and Irene's youngest son James works for Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines in Florida.

Building for the future. On October 15, 1995, Abe Pollin broke ground at the future site of MCI Center. Slated to open in the fall of 1997, MCI Center will serve as home to the Wizards, the NHL's Washington Capitals, and a variety of concerts and other special events.

SUSAN O'MALLEY

RESIDENCE:
Alexandria, VA

BIRTHDATE:
November 7, 1961

BIRTHPLACE:
Washington, DC

STARTED WITH BULLETS:
August 1, 1986

NAMED BULLETS PRESIDENT:
May 9, 1991

President

Susan O'Malley's grade school teacher may have thought her essay on wanting to "run a sports franchise" was a bit unrealistic for a professional career, but, for those who work hard enough, dreams do come true. From a young age, O'Malley has always been certain as to what she wanted to do with her life, and measuring from the success she has brought the Bullets organization, her childhood dream has not only become a reality but has turned into a prosperous tenure.

On May 9, 1991, O'Malley became the highest ranking woman in sports (excluding female owners) when Abe Pollin named her president of the Bullets organization. Prior to the 1995-96 season, she assumed additional responsibilties as president of Washington Sports and Entertainment, the parent company overseeing the business operations for the Bullets and the Washington Capitals of the National Hockey League. In her current position, O'Malley also heads the marketing efforts for MCI Center.

"As we prepare to move into a new arena with two teams capable of challenging for league championships, I can not think of a better person to market our teams," said Chairman Abe Pollin.

This season, O'Malley begins her sixth year as president of the Bullets. Under her leadership, the team has shattered all previous franchise records for average attendance and home sellouts. During the 1994-95 campaign, the Bullets sold out a franchise record 30 home games and increased the current record for average attendance by nearly 2,000 fans. Last season's average of 16,789 fans per game represented more than 93 percent of the arena's capacity.

"We are in the entertainment business," said O'Malley. "It is our job to make sure that people who purchase tickets to a Bullets game have an entertaining evening and are treated as guests in our building. If they are treated right, they will probably come back."

O'Malley has seen her "pro-active" service to customers bring booming results for the Bullets. In her first season handling off-court activities, the team experienced the largest ticket revenue year in the history of the franchise. In addition, that year, the club achieved the highest renewal rate of season tickets ever by the Bullets franchise, including the year following the 1977-78 Championship season.

Ticket holders are not the only ones who have commended O'Malley with rewards for her superb service. In 1994, Advertising Age Magazine ranked her as one of the top 100 marketers in the United States. She has developed a reputation as a savvy sports marketer with an uncanny ability to generate excitement.

In addition to effortless marketing and customer service ventures, O'Malley has worked extremely hard securing additional broadcasting for Bullets games. This summer, O'Malley engineered a deal with WRC (980 AM) who will serve as the Bullets flagship radio station through the 1998-99 NBA season. Prior to the 1992-93 season, O'Malley brought the team a weekly television show, "Bullets Jam Session," that is televised on Home Team Sports and WRC-TV 4 in Washington. The show won an Emmy in its first season and continues to be popular among young basketball fans.

The organization's involvement in the community has never been more evident since O'Malley has guided the team's effort. Her off-the-court activities are equally impressive as her business operations for the team. She is actively involved with numerous community organizations and serves on the Board of Regents for her alma mater, Mount St. Mary's.

Since being named president, the increased demand for O'Malley as a speaker at Washington and Baltimore civic groups, schools and business associations keeps her occupied whenever she manages to have a free moment.

O'Malley joined the Bullets organization during the 1986-87 season as the director of advertising. Her duties included the development of new advertising campaigns, as well as placement and exposure of existing campaigns.

Because of the success in her rookie season, O'Malley took the position of director of marketing the following season. In 1988, O'Malley was named executive vice president where she was given total responsibility of overseeing marketing, sponsorship, ticket sales, advertising, accounting, public relations and community relations of the organization. She assumed her current position in 1991.

A 1983 graduate of Mount St. Mary's College in Emmitsburg, Md., O'Malley earned a bachelor of science degree in business and finance. Prior to joining the Bullets, O'Malley worked for the Earle Palmer Brown advertising firm for three years. Susan, a native of Clinton, Md., currently resides in Alexandria, Va.

Executive Vice President and General Manager

Sixteen years after retiring as a Bullets player, Wes Unseld continues to accept challenges as a member of the Bullets front office. His Hall of Fame play led the Bullets to their only NBA title in 1978, he motivated the team from the bench as the Bullets head coach for seven seasons, and assisted in the planning and development of MCI Center, the team's new arena in downtown Washington, DC. Most recently, Unseld has been charged with the reponsibility of building a basketball team capable of bringing a world championship back to the nation's capital.

On May 1, 1996 Unseld inked a contract to become the team's Executive Vice President and General Manager. Unseld wasted no time this summer upgrading this team with key acquisitions. On July 15, Unseld obtained Rod Strickland, a top point guard and proven veteran in the NBA, and forward Harvey Grant from the Portland Trail Blazers. All-Star forward Juwan Howard and back-up point guard Chris Whitney were re-signed and from the free agent frenzy this summer, Unseld tabbed sharp shooting forward Tracy Murray and 6-foot-9 center Lorenzo Williams.

"Wes has been a great asset to the Bullets organization since the day he played his first game," said Bullets Owner Abe Pollin. "Many times through the history of this franchise, I have turned to Wes to lead the way. As we enter a very exciting and important time in the Bullets development, I can think of no other candidate more appropriate to take the Bullets into the future than Wes Unseld. Wes has never let me down in anything he's ever done."

As Executive Vice President of Washington Sports and Entertainment for the past two years, Unseld managed the sponsorship, communications, community relations, and game operations for the Bullets and the Capitals. He also headed the research and planning of MCI Center. Scheduled for opening in the fall of 1997, the new arena will be a direct portrayal of Unseld's commitment to excellence.

Unseld's dedication to the Bullets organization has been there since day one of his playing career. After his stellar career came to a close in 1981, Pollin recognized the importance of keeping his dedicated, hard-working star in the organization. Unseld was immediately hired by Pollin to serve as a front office executive. Pollin felt that Unseld's winning ways would be a positive force in the day-to-day operation of the Bullets organization.

As vice president, Unseld devoted a great deal of time towards making special appearances. He became one of the NBA's most popular and prolific speakers. In addition, he worked as an analyst for Bullets telecasts and was directly involved in sponsorships and community relations.

Prior to the 1987-88 season, Bullets Head Coach Kevin Loughery saw Unseld as a great motivator and invited Unseld to extend his basketball knowledge to the team as an assistant coach. Just 27 games into the season, with the team struggling at 8-19, Pollin released Loughery of his coaching duties and selected Unseld to replace him. The Bullets responded dramatically to Unseld's leadership as head coach, compiling a 30-25 record during the remainder of the regular season, and bringing the Bullets into the playoffs. Unseld went on to complete six more seasons as Bullets head coach.

The 6-foot-7 Unseld, who was best known as a player for his bone-jarring picks and full-court outlet passes, was chosen by the Bullets in the first round of the 1968 NBA Draft. His two-time All America honors while playing at the University of Louisville put him in position to be the second overall pick in the Draft.

Adapting to the rigors of the NBA came without difficulty for Unseld. Success came immediately, as Unseld's first NBA season graced him with not only Rookie-of-the Year honors, but the League's Most Valuable Player award as well. Only Wilt Chamberlain has been able to win both awards in the same season. Unseld was also selected to play in the NBA All-Star game that season, his first of five appearances.

Unseld also helped turn around the fortunes of the team as well. The Bullets improved 21 games in his rookie campaign. During the Unseld era, the franchise compiled a .580 winning percentage, compared with a .364 percentage prior to his days as a player. He was perhaps the greatest force in sending the Bullets to 12 consecutive playoff appearances, highlighted by the 1978 World Championship.

In the process, Unseld achieved numerous milestones and accomplishments. In the NBA record books, he ranks seventh all-time in rebounding; is one of a handful of players who have both scored 10,000 points and pulled down 10,000 rebounds; and is the Bullets all-time leader in games played, minutes, assists and rebounds. On May 3, 1988, he was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility.

Unseld's achievements on the court are not all that he has given to the public. He and his wife Connie opened up a school just outside of Baltimore that provides an excellent education to Baltimore youngsters. Connie, a school teacher during the 1970s, was frustrated with the education that children were receiving, and wanted to do what she could to help remedy the situation.

The dream of the Unseld School became reality and has been an important part of the community ever since. Today, the Unseld School serves 200 students from pre-school through fifth grade with a student-teacher ratio of 12:1.

Unseld has a slew of other notable achievements. In 1975, he was the first recipient of the Walter Kennedy Citizenship Award, which is given annually to the NBA player or coach making the greatest contribution to his community. Unseld also served as Vice President of the NBA Players Association. He continues to volunteer countless hours towards community projects and runs the annual Wes Unseld Fantasy Camp.

Wes, Connie, and their children, Kimberly (23) and Westley (21), reside in Baltimore, Md.

Jim LYNAM

Head Coach

RESIDENCE:
Annapolis, MD

BIRTHDATE:
September 15, 1941

BIRTHPLACE:
Philadelphia, PA

HIRED AS HEAD COACH:
May 4, 1994

Entering his third year as the Bullets' skipper, there's no question Jim Lynam has produced results on the court. As in past successes, these results can often be directly attributed to the great desire that is characteristic of his team.

On May 4, 1994, Lynam was officially named the 13th head coach in Bullets history. Since that time, he has molded his young players into a solid unit through motivation, education, and communication.

During the 1995-96 season, Lynam led his young Bullets team to the second biggest turnaround in the NBA, behind the Chicago Bulls. Despite severe injuries to several key contibutors, Washington posted a 39-43 record, an 18-game improvement over the prevous season's 21-61 mark. The team's consistent progress despite adversity earned him rave reviews from players and coaches throughout the league.

"I think Jimmy is doing an amazing job, especially with the young players,"said Larry Brown, Indiana Pacers Head Coach. "That's fun watching a coach get the most of his players."

Prior to joining the Bullets, Lynam served as general manager of the 76ers, replacing Gene Shue in May of 1992. He had coached the Sixers for the previous four and a half seasons, compiling a 194-173 record (.529), making him the second winningest coach in Sixers history, behind only Billy Cunningham.

The pinnacle of Lynam's coaching career, thus far, came during the 1989-90 season as he led the Sixers to an Atlantic Division title with an impressive 53-29 record. The divisional title was the Sixers' first in seven years. Lynam finished second in balloting for Coach-of-the-Year honors.

"I enjoy playing for Coach Lynam," said Bullets All-Star forward Juwan Howard. "He has helped me become a better player because he's a great teacher. He's a player's coach and I would give 110% for him. He brings out the fight and intensity in you."

As an assistant to his former college coach Jack Ramsey, Lynam began his NBA coaching career with Portland in 1981. He then moved on to become head coach for the Clippers, leading the 1983-84 team to a 30-52 record. In his second year with the Clippers, he was replaced 61 games into the season with a 22-39 record.

Lynam's college coaching career covered 10 seasons, as he compiled a 158-118 record with a .572 winning percentage. Lynam spent two seasons at Fairfield University (23-29), five seasons at American University (70-61) and three at St. Joseph's University (65-28). His .699 winning percentage at St. Joseph's is the second best in school history, behind only Ramsay. During his stint with the Hawks, St. Joseph's made two NIT appearances and were Mid-East runner-up in the 1981 NCAA Tournament following a shocking last second upset of top-ranked DePaul.

Lynam is a member of the St. Joseph's and Philadelphia Big Five Hall of Fames. He and his wife, Kay, reside in Annapolis, Md. They have three children: Kathy, Denise and Jim, Jr.

BOB STAAK

Assistant Coach

When Jim Lynam took over the head coaching reigns for the Bullets in May 1994, he needed an NBA coaching veteran to help guide him through the many difficult choices that need to be made on the court. It took Lynam less than a month to make a decision, tabbing Bob Staak as his top assistant.

Staak's 24 years of coaching experience have seasoned him into one of the league's most knowledgeable figures. Prior to joining the Bullets, Staak served as an assistant to Kevin Loughery of the Miami Heat for three seasons and as a scout for the Bullets during the 1990-91 season. Staak's entrance into the NBA came in 1989 when he was named assistant to Clippers Head Coach Don Casey.

The bulk of Staak's career thus far has been spent at the collegiate level, where he coached for 15 years. Ten of those seasons were spent as a head coach, where he skippered Wake Forest and Xavier. Staak's best season came during the 1983-84 campaign, when he led the Musketeers to a 22-8 record, the school's best in 35 years.

After graduating from the University of Connecticut in 1971, Staak began his career as head coach of East Hartford (CT) High School. Following that, he served as an assistant at UConn, William and Mary, and Penn.

Staak, who resides in Annapolis, Md., has a 14-year-old son, Corey.

BUZZ BRAMAN

Assistant Coach

Buzz Braman is known throughout the league for his work on players' shooting skills. Braman, who is in his second season with the team, has worked with a variety of individual players on shooting technique and concentration.

As a member of the Bullets staff, Buzz returns to his native home. Braman grew up in suburban Maryland, where he attended Springbrook High School. He played college basketball at East Carolina University before finishing his eligibility at the University of Maryland.

Braman spends his off-season conducting basketball camps and speaking to various groups. He and his wife Jamie have two sons, Zachary (12) and Cory (11).

CHUCK DOUGLAS

Assistant General Manager/Head Scout

Chuck Douglas marks his 12th year with the Bullets, and begins his fifth season as assistant general manager and head scout. In his current position, Douglas is the team's top evaluator of talent at the collegiate level and in the developmental leagues.

He implemented the team's computer system for the compilation, analysis and evaluation of college and pro statistical information. Additionally, Douglas is responsible for scouting NBA opponents and scheduling all Bullets preseason games.

Prior to joining the basketball operations end of the organization, the Springfield, Va., native worked in the team's public relations office for three seasons. His experiences also include working with the University of Maryland's sports information office, the 1984 L.A. Olympic Committee and ProServ, the Washington, D.C., based sports firm.

The 34-year-old Douglas, a sports administration graduate from the University of Maryland, resides in Crofton, MD.

JIM LYNAM, JR.

Video Coordinator

Jim Lynam, Jr., is in his third season as Bullets video coordinator. Lynam is responsible for all Bullets and opponents game footage. Additionally, he assists the basketball operations staff with advanced NBA scouting and general college scouting, as well as video breakdown duties.

A graduate of the University of Delaware, Lynam spent two seasons with the Philadelphia 76ers as video coordinator and assistant to basketball operations. Lynam, the son of Bullets Head Coach Jim Lynam, also worked for Airbourne Express in their information systems department. He resides in Annapolis, MD.

Basketball Training Staff

KevinJOHNSON

Head Trainer

Kevin Johnson begins his third season as the Bullets head trainer. Previously, Johnson worked as the assistant trainer for the Indiana Pacers for four seasons, highlighted by the team coming one game short of the NBA 1994 Finals.

Prior to his stint with the Pacers, he spent six months with the Indianapolis Colts as an assistant trainer. He is a member of the National Athletic Trainer's Association and has served as the chairman of the public relations committee for Indiana Athletic Trainer's Association since 1992.

Johnson graduated from Indiana State University in 1989 with a Bachelor of Science in Physical Education, with a specialization in Athletic Training. He is actively involved in the Big Brothers of America. Johnson and his wife Sheila reside in Bowie, MD.

dennisHOUSEHOLDER

Strength and Conditioning Coach

Dennis Householder begins his eighth full season as the Bullets Strength and Conditioning Coach. A 1975 physical education graduate of Shepherd College in West Virginia, Householder coached high school football on Maryland's Eastern Shore for two seasons before joining the Bullets in 1987.

He is a certified Level I coach of the United States Weightlifting Federation and maintains a membership in the National Basketball Conditioning Coaches Assoc., as well as the National Strength and Conditioning Assoc. Householder is co-author of the book Conditioning the NBA Way. He resides in Crofton, MD, with his wife Debbie.

Equipment Manager

Charlie Butler, one of the longest tenured members of the Bullets staff, is in his 18th season as the team's equipment manager. Butler joined the Bullets in 1978 while working at the athletic facilities at Bowie State University. Today, he handles virtually all of the behind-the-scenes maintenance of the team, including locker room preparations and the team's laundry needs. Butler and his wife, Theresa, reside in Crofton, MD.

JerryWALTER

Assistant Equipment Manager

Jerry Walter begins his sixth full season as Assistant Equipment Manager for the Bullets. Prior to joining the team's operations staff, Walter was a production manager for Rainbow Sports, a local promotions and novelties company. Walter served in the U.S. Army for three years, then worked in law enforcement for three years in Houston, Tex. In past years, Walter assisted operations for various USAir Arena events including the Georgetown Hoyas, Washington Warthogs and Washington Capitals. He resides in his native Wheaton, MD.

JUDY HOLLAND

Vice President of Community Relations

One of the longest tenured employees in the organization, Judy Holland is a 14-year Bullets veteran. For the second straight season, Holland will oversee the Community Relations departments for both the Bullets and the NHL's Capitals. Under her supervision last season, the Community Relations department was responsible for such acclaimed ventures as the Bullets Stay in School program, the team's court resurfacing project, canned food drives, game night silent auctions, and the club's dance team, the Reebok Bullettes.

Holland also helps coordinate the Bullets Wives Save Lives Campaign, a national program adopted by the NBA to promote early detection as a life-saving tool against breast cancer. Prior to being named vice president in 1991, Holland served as the team's community relations director for three seasons.

A graduate of Hampton Institute in Virginia with a degree in mass media, she was a staff writer for the Frederick News and Post before joining the Bullets. A native of Frederick, MD, she now resides in Mitchellville, MD.

RICK MORELAND

Vice President of Sales

In his ninth season with the team, Moreland will begin his first overseeing Capitol Sports, the sponsorship division of Washington Sports and Entertainment. He is also vice president of sales for the Bullets and the Capitals. He joined the Bullets in 1988 as the team's director of public relations and became vice president of communications in 1991. A year later, Moreland shifted gears again moving to Baltimore to handle all aspects of the team's four-game series at the Baltimore Arena, as well as supervising the team's broadcast responsibilities.

Prior to joining the Bullets, Moreland worked in the athletic department at the University of Maryland Baltimore County (UMBC), including roles as associate athletic director and assistant basketball coach. At 6-foot-7, Moreland played basketball for UMBC, and in 1983, he was a ninth round draft choice of the Bullets. A 1983 Broadcasting/Media graduate of UMBC, he completed his Masters Degree in public relations at the University of Maryland. Rick and his wife Susan reside in Crofton, Md., with their three children, Ricky (10), Ryan (9), and Alexandra (7).

MATT WILLIAMS

Vice President of Communications

Matt Williams begins his sixth season with the team and his second as the Vice President of Communications. In his current position, Williams oversees the public relations and broadcasting divisions for both the Bullets and Capitals.

Prior to joining the Bullets, Williams spent two years as a publicist for Centre Management, promoting events at the arena and the event management firm's numerous venues. Williams also spent two seasons as the assistant public relations director for the Atlanta Hawks.

A 1987 graduate of Emory University in Atlanta, Williams has previous experience with the Atlanta Braves, Atlanta Falcons and CNN. He and his wife, Christie, reside in Alexandria, Va.

rhondaBALLUTE

Executive Director of Client Services

Rhonda Ballute, in her 16th season with the Bullets, and the team's philosophy of "pro-active" service has never been more evident than during her tenure. For the second season, she will oversee all customer service, advertising, promotions and box office activities for both the Bullets and Capitals. She and her husband Eddie reside in Bowie, Md., with daughters, Amanda (10) and Kelsie (4).

taraGRECO

Director of Community Relations

In her fourth season with the Bullets, Tara Greco has made great strides within the community relations department. She currently oversees community events for both the Bullets and the Washington Capitals. WASHINGTON BULLETS 1996-97 SEASON PROSPECTUS

By Head Coach Jim Lynam

"I'm looking forward to this season, more then anything that I have ever done in my whole life."

—Jim Lynam, August 10, 1996, Juwan Howard Press Conference

Success in the NBA is a building process. Teams tend to improve in steps over the course of several years, reaching new heights each season. Since taking the reigns as coach of the Bullets in 1994, my staff and I have continued to look ahead, setting goals which would prepare our club for future success. I firmly believe that we are headed in the right direction.

The Bullets currently have ten players under contract for the 1996-97 season. As the off-season progresses, we hope to form a cohesive unit of talented players. The addition of Rod Strickland, Harvey Grant, Tracy Murray, and Lorenzo Williams is a step in the right direction. The core that we have developed over the past two years could help us become a contender for many seasons to come.

Despite finishing the year at 39-43, several of our players produced notable achievements last season. Juwan Howard was selected for the 1996 East All-Star team, was named to the All-NBA Third Team and became the first Bullet since 1983 to win NBA Player of the Month honors. Gheorghe Muresan's continued development earned him the NBA Most Improved Player Award and Tim Legler capped his breakthrough season by leading the league in three-point shooting and winning the three-point contest during All-Star Weekend.

Chris Webber is capable of being one of the most dominant player s in the league. While fighting shoulder problems, which he eventually had to have surgery to fix, he averaged 23.7 ppg and 7.6 rpg in his short, 15 game stint. Webber is a tremendous talent who is driven to help this team play to its potential.

On July 15, 1996, we obtained the services of Rod Strickland, Harvey Grant and Tracy Murray. Strickland is the type of player who makes his teammates better because of his ability to penetrate the defense and create. Grant is a versatile wing player who has shown to be equally effective defending both the big guards and small forwards and Murray is an excellent three-point shooter.

We also signed 6-9 , 230 pound center Lorenzo Williams. Williams finished last season ranked sixth in the league in offensive rebounding (3.6 orpg) and led the Mavs in blocks for the second consecutive year. We believe that Lorenzo will come in here and be a solid contributor.

With Howard, Webber, Muresan, and Williams in the frontcourt, we'll have one of the top inside games in the NBA. The inside strength of the frontcourt will be complimented by Murray, Legler and Strickland's perimeter game.

With the No. 55 pick in the 1996 NBA Draft, we selected guard Ronnie Henderson out of Louisiana State University. His acquisition fills a void at shooting guard created by a knee injury suffered by Legler that will keep him sidelined until December. Henderson led the Southeastern Conference in scoring the past two seasons and earned Honorable Mention All-America honors from the Associated Press following the 1995-96 season. We feel very fortunate to have obtained a player with "first-round" talent with a pick late in the second round.

With this team's maturing talent and the dedication of its players and coaches, we're looking to take the next step to success during the upcoming season.

BULLETS IN THE COMMUNITY

Anti-Violence Initiative: In conjunction with the team's decision to change its nickname, the Bullets initiated an anti-violence program focusing on the youth of Washington, DC. Through a variety of projects, the team has focused on helping foster respect among students and educate the youth about alternatives to violent actions.

Urban Development: During the past several years the Bullets have embarked on a variety of programs in order to help refurbish local communities. With the assistance of Fannie Mae, the Bullets have remodeled many dilapidated houses for first-time buyer families. The Home Team project began in October 1994 in the Shaw neighborhood of Washington, DC and has since spread to communities throughout the area. The Bullets have also made improvements to several playground areas in Washington and Baltimore. Recent ventures have included asphalting and paving of basketball courts, installation of new poles and baskets, and painting of NBA regulation lines and logos on the playing surface.

Hoopsmarks: For the past four summers, the Bullets encouraged recreational reading with the "Hoopsmarks" program for young adults in the metro area. Through Washington, DC libraries, students received a bookmark featuring a different Bullets player for every two books that they read. After completing 12 books and collecting all six Hoopsmarks, every student receives two tickets to a designated Bullets game.

Pick and Roll: During the 1996-97 NBA season, thousands of Washington, DC and Baltimore city students will participate in the Bullets "Pick and Roll" reading incentive program. Students will be rewarded based on their successful completion of eight books between November and February to earn a place on Juwan Howard's All-Star Reading Program.

Community Outreach: The Bullets are involved with various outreach drives across the Washington metropolitan area. Several Bullet players try to give back much of their time to benefit the less fortunate. The Juwan Howard foundation sponsors a "Warm Hearts" winter clothes drive, which asks fans to donate winter clothing items. Each fan that participates receives a coupon for an upcoming Bullets games. The Bullets also host an annual food drive before Thanksgiving , for which fans are encouraged to donate non-perishable items to benefit the Capital Area Community Food Bank. During the holiday season, the Bullets partner with the Marine Corps to collect toys for under privileged kids in the Washington area.

Creative Arts Contests: The Bullets sponsor two creative arts contest for area school children each year. In January, high school students are invited to participate in an essay contest to honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King on his birthday. To celebrate Black History Month in February, junior high school students will be invited to participate in an art contest to recognize significant figures in African-American history. Winners of both contests will be honored at a Bullets home game.

The Bullettes and Hoops: The "Reebok Bullettes," the club's dance squad, and "Hoops," the team's mascot, will continue to make an impact in the community this season with numerous appearances for charitable organizations throughout the area. In addition, the "Junior Bullettes," a dance team comprised of the daughters of Bullettes VIP season ticket holders, will be entertaining fans at select home games for the fourth straight season.

For more information about player appearances and community events, please contact the Bullets Community Relations Department at (301) 773-2255.

NBA IN THE COMMUNITY

The NBA, its teams, players and coaches support programs dedicated to helping build a better future for all people, with a special emphasis on youth.

The 1996-97 season marks the debut of the NBA's league-wide community outreach initiative entitled the NBA TeamUp program. Its primary goal is to encourage youth to become actively involved in their communities. TeamUp helps young people develop an understanding of critical issues facing society and focuses on their ability to make a difference in the lives of others through community service projects. Program components include public service announcements, motivational visits by NBA spokesmen and players and a national youth service award.

This season the league also introduces the NBA Sportsmanship Initiative, a program designed to recognize and promote the importance of sportsmanship on the court. The nationwide program, implemented by the NBA in conjunction with the National Federation of State High School Associations, targets high school student-athletes participating in basketball. Each year, an NBA player will be selected to receive the NBA Sportsmanship Award for demonstrating sportsmanship throughout the season.

The NBA also continues its support of Black History Month, CARE, the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday, the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse and Reading Is Fundamental through a variety of community outreach efforts.

In addition, the NBA's 29 teams remain actively involved in supporting and implementing various programs that positively impact their local communities in the United States and Canada.

DAVID ROBINSON

DID YOU KNOW? During the 1995-96 season, the Spurs clinched their ninth division title since joining the NBA prior to the 1976-77 season...During that span, only the Lakers (11) and Celtics (10) have claimed more...The Spurs backcourt combination of Avery Johnson and Vinny Del Negro finished with the best assist-to-turnover ratio among any starting backcourt in the league during the 1995-96 season (3.74-1).

NBA PLAYOFF FORMAT

1. Sixteen teams will qualify for the playoffs. There will be eight teams from each conference, consisting of the two division champions and the six other teams in each conference with the best winning percentage during the regular season.

2. The first round of the playoffs will be a best-of-five series with all succeeding rounds, including the NBA World Championship Series, being best-of-seven. All playoff teams will participate in the first round, byes that formerly went to division winners have been eliminated. Following are the playoff pairings:

NOTE: Team 1 in each conference is the division winner with the better record; Team 2 is the other division winner and Teams 3-8 are ranked according to their regular-season winning percentage.

NBA Playoff Tie-Breaking Procedure

TWO-WAY TIE

In order to break a tie for playoff positions, if one exists at the close of the regular season, the following criteria will be utilized in the order set forth:

1. Results of games against each other.
2. Better winning percentage within own conference.
3. Better winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in the same division).
4. Better winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Point differential in games against each other.
6. Better point differential between offense and defense.

MORE THAN TWO TEAMS TIED

1. Best cumulative winning percentage in total games involving all teams tied.
2. Best winning percentage within own conference.
3. Best winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in same division).
4. Best winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Best point differential between offense and defense.

If a multiple team tie is reduced to a two-team tie at any point using the above criteria, the two-team tie will be resolved in accordance with the existing two-team tie procedure.

1995-96 BULLETS TEAM NOTES

MOVIN' UP: Despite 243 man-games lost because of injuries to key starters (Webber, Pack, Price, Cheaney and Wallace each missed more than 10 games), the Bullets managed a 39-43 overall record this season, an 18-game improvement (the second biggest jump in the league behind Chicago) over last season's 21-61 mark. The Bullets tied last year's total of 21 victories on January 27 vs. Vancouver, and surpassed that win total on February 2 vs. Portland. Following is a look at the Bullets production this year compared to the previous season:

1995-96 SEASON:

PTS	FG%	3-Pt.%	FT%	RPG	APG	SPG	BPG
102.5	.484	.407	.728	39.7	22.1	7.2	6.2

1994-95 SEASON:

PTS	FG%	3-Pt.%	FT%	RPG	APG	SPG	BPG
100.5	.460	.343	.724	39.8	21.3	7.9	4.9

THE LAST TIME: The team's season was highlighted by an improbable playoff run which surprised nearly everybody but the players themselves. The race included a seven-game winning streak, which was the first time time the Bullets had registered such a stretch since the 1987-88 season (Feb. 25 to Mar. 9). The last time the Bullets made the playoffs was the 1987-88 season, when they finished 38-44 and lost to Detroit 2-3 in the first round. Following is a look at a few of this season's accomplishments:

39 wins: best since the 1988-89 season (40-42)
25 home wins: best since the 1988-89 season (30-11)
14 road wins best since the 1986-87 season (15-26)

ON TARGET: The Bullets ranked second in the league (behind Utah, .488) in field goal percentage, shooting .484 percent as a team. They were 30-9 when shooting above the .500 percent mark and 9-34 when failing to make .500 percent of their attempts.

TREY TOWN: The Bullets led the league in three-point percentage, shooting .407 percent, and were 15-4 when shooting better than .500 percent from three-point range. Washington's .40677 mark (493/1212) was the highest single-season three-point percentage in NBA history, narrowly edging Cleveland's 1989-90 record of .40658 (346/851). The Bullets held their opponents to just .342 percent (377-1103) shooting from long range, the third stingiest mark in the league.

BOMBS AWAY: Bullets guards Tim Legler shot .522 (128-245) from three-point range last season, tops in the NBA. Legler also claimed the 1996 AT&T All-Star Shootout, scoring the most total points in the history of the event. The rest of the team shot a combined .339 percent (226-666).

MURESAN NAMED LEAGUE'S MOST IMPROVED: Bullets center Gheorghe Muresan won the NBA's Most Improved Player Award on May 2, 1996 after posting an impressive third season. He led the NBA in field goal percentage (.584) and improved his production in nearly every statistical category. He also led the team in rebounding (9.6 rpg) and ranked eighth in the league in blocks (2.26 bpg).

AIIIIR BAAALL: Washington's opponents shot .766 percent from the free throw line, the highest percentage in the league. On the opposite end, the Bullets ranked 21st in the league in free throw shooting, netting .728 percent of their attempts from the line.

DEE-FENSE: The Bullets were 26-12 when holding opponents under the century mark, and 13-31 when allowing more than 100 points. For the season, Washington held the opposition to less than .500 percent shooting in 61 of 82 games. Bullets opponents shot .460 percent from the field. The team also ranked fifth in the league with 6.17 bpg.

CLOSE CONTESTS: 19 of Washington's 43 losses were by six points or fewer, including seven losses by a total of nine points. The Bullets were 4-8 in games decided by three points or less.

BLOWOUTS: 28 of Washington's 39 victories were by eight or more points. The team's 39 victories were by an average of 12.1 points per game (471) and Washington was 5-0 in games decided by 25 or more points. Last season, the Bullets won only four games all year by nine points or more and two other games by eight points. Washington's largest margin of victory this season was a 35-point win over the defending champion Houston Rockets 1/25.

WASHINGTON WIZARDS: Bullets Chairman Abe Pollin announced on Feb. 22 that the nickname of his 34-year-old NBA franchise will be changed from the Bullets to the Wizards. The name change will take effect for the 1997-98 season when the team begins play at the MCI Center in downtown Washington, D.C. The name Wizards was chosen by fans based on phone voting, beating out the other four finalists: Dragons, Express, Sea Dogs and Stallions. Proceeds from the voting process will benefit the Bullets/NBC4 Anti-Violence Campaign.

SOLD OUT: The Bullets posted 29 sellouts (18,756 at USAir Arena) in 41 home games this season, and 12 capacity crowds in the last 15 home contests. The team finished the season averaging 16,789 fans per game. The franchise record of 30 sell-outs was set during the 1994-95 season, shattering the previous mark of 20 attained during the 1992-93 season.

HOWARD HONORS: Bullets forward Juwan Howard posted a tremendous sophomore NBA season. His year was highlighted by his first All-Star appearance, as voted by the Eastern Conference coaches, and was capped by earning two league honors during the season's final month. He was named NBA Player of the Month for April. He also was honored as the league's best player for the week ending Sunday, April 14. This marked the first time a Bullets player had won the monthly award since Jeff Ruland earned it in December 1983. It was the first time a Bullets player had won the weekly award since December 23, 1991, when Pervis Ellison won it.
